

Los Angeles

MAGAZINE

We're Kvelling! Balaboosta Pop-Up in May at Fred Segal Mauro's Café

Because Passover is just whetting our appetite

Einat Admony has made a career out of pushing the foods of her Jewish heritage. The self-described 21st-century “Balaboosta” (Yiddish for perfect housewife) is the owner of a New York City restaurant of the same name and released the gorgeous Balaboosta cookbook in September. Next month, the New Yorker will bring her Israeli and Mediterranean-inspired dishes to L.A. a four-night Balaboosta pop-up inside Mauro's Café at West Hollywood's Fred Segal.